Having a ball in a world of sport

Good sports: Some of the smiling pupils with their medals at the games festival

HUNDREDS of children from schools across Tottenham were able to try their hand for the first time at everything from boxing and basketball to tennis and rugby at a special festival of sport.

More than 400 pupils from nine primary schools took part in the fun-packed SportInspired Games Festival at Tottenham Green Pools & Fitness Centre, in Phillip Lane, last week. It was part of Haringey Council's commitment to helping create a healthier borough.

In partnership with social enterprise SportInspired and with volunteers from the Lloyds Banking Group, coaches from Haringey's community sports clubs gave children the chance to try various activities.

And every pupil was handed their own book to collect stickers for signing up to sports clubs and classes, with prizes, including a bike, on offer for those who gather the most in the next few months.

Alan Strickland, cabinet member for regeneration and housing, said: "It was brilliant to see so many pupils with smiling faces trying out something new for the first time, backed by the enthusiasm of volunteers and coaches from Haringey's great local sports clubs. Fun programmes like this are a great example of what we'll be doing to show how easy it is to get active, join a local club and play a part in making Haringey a healthier place."

Anna Springbett, director at SportInspired, said: "We're thrilled to work with the council, which shares our passion for sporting activity and the way in which it connects communities and develops skills. Some outstanding local role models have stepped up already to support the community through this programme."

The youngster, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was also disqualified from driving for ten years when he was sentenced at Blackfriars Crown Court last Wednesday.

He had admitted to causing death by careless driving after pleading guilty to the charge at a previous hearing.

The fatal collision involved the moped and two cars and happened at the junction of Moreton Road and Seven Sisters Road, South Tottenham, at 1.07pm on October 19 last year.

Other offences which the boy was charged with including failure to stop, causing death while uninsured and causing death while not having a licence will remain on file.

The 17-year-old moped rider, Jack Walker, from Islington, died at the scene despite attempts by air ambulance medics to save him.

A total of six people, including the 15-year-old, were arrested in connection with the collision.

A 17-year-old boy, from Hoxton, who also cannot be named for legal reasons, pleaded guilty to driving while disqualified when he appeared at Highbury Magistrates' Court in January and was sentenced to an 18-month rehabilitation order and banned from driving for 12 months.

Last month, a 16-year-old boy from Islington, who also cannot be named, was convicted of allowing himself to be carried in a stolen vehicle and received a 12-month conditional discharge.

Two men, both aged 20, and a 23-year-old man were arrested in connection with the incident, but were released without charge.

Knifepoint robbery lands man in prison

A MAN who carried out a knifepoint robbery on a 19-year-old woman after she got off a night bus in Wood Green has been jailed for four years and four months.

Glennville Fergus, 51, of no fixed abode, was handed the sentence at Wood Green Crown Court last Tuesday after he had pleaded guilty at a previous hearing at the same court on May 5.

His victim had been returning home from work at 3am on Saturday, February 21, when she got off the bus outside Haringey Civic Centre, in High Road, Wood Green.

She crossed the road and began walking down White Hart Lane, but as she got to the junction with Ewart Grove, she heard Fergus running up behind her.

He shouted to her to hand over her bag, but she refused.

He then produced a Stanley knife, flicked the blade out and pointed it at her before snatching the bag and running off.

The woman immediately rang police on her mobile phone and provided a description of her attacker.

Shortly afterwards, Fergus was spotted by police running into nearby Commerce Road and was seen to discard something he was carrying.

He was stopped and found in possession of a Stanley knife and the woman's purse.

Fergus admitted the robbery and showed police where he had thrown the victim's handbag and other items.

Detective Constable Leon Ure, from Haringey's Serious Acquisitive Crime Unit, said: "This was a traumatic ordeal for the victim."

"Fortunately, thanks to the prompt response of police officers and the subsequent courageous actions of the victim in supporting our investigation, a dangerous individual has been brought to justice."

Social services 'knew of' teen killer's violent home

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN aspiring architect was stabbed to death on a summer evening after social workers missed multiple opportunities to intervene in his young killer's life of crime and violence.

A serious case review by Enfield and Haringey councils details the litany of failings that led to Ochaiine Williams being free to walk the streets.

Williams, who was 15 at the time of the killing, was locked up for 12 years after being found guilty of murdering 21-year-old Stephen Grisales with a single stab wound to the chest on August 31, 2011.

The student was attacked in College Close, Edmonton, as he walked home and asked a group of teens including his killer to stop throwing conkers at him.

It has now emerged that Williams' family was known to Haringey social services, but had been allowed to remain at large to either "harm someone or be seriously harmed" – as per a warning by a psychologist for Enfield's youth offending service.

The report reveals that Williams' mother had sought asylum in the UK from Jamaica in 2001 based on her sexuality.

The family moved to Haringey from Sheffield in 2005 and soon became known to social services.

The picture of the killer's home life that emerges in the report is one of violence and neglect and the child social services team are condemned for ignoring domestic violence because it occurred within a same-sex relationship and for prioritising Williams' mother's asylum concerns over the welfare of her children.

"Reviews had become so formulaic that they missed the obvious and did not deliver what was required," the report states. "Removing the children from that situation should have been a serious consideration from 2006 onwards."

Meanwhile, Williams became increasingly involved in the notorious Northumberland Park Gang and was arrested or interviewed by police in relation to incidents including drugs, thefts, assaults and crimes involving guns and knives.

In 2010, while Williams was subject to a child protection plan from Haringey, he moved with his family to Enfield. However, Enfield social workers had no chance to intervene in the chaotic family life as Haringey remained in charge of his care and did not organise a transfer case conference.

He was subject to curfews and orders imposed by Haringey youth offending teams. However, his case was not transferred to Enfield's equivalent. While living in Enfield, he was subject to a 9pm curfew. The murder occurred just before 7pm.

While the report praises some aspects of Enfield's dealings with Williams and his family, it states that in August 2011 there was not sufficient "management and oversight" of his case by the Enfield youth offending service.

A Haringey Council spokesman said: "The review makes it clear we should have taken more robust action both to support the child in this case and ensure that harmful behaviour was properly addressed, and we are sorry we failed to do so."

"This case occurred at a time when children's services in Haringey were not operating as effectively as they should have been. Since this case we have made a number of improvements which address many of the issues raised."

A spokesman for Enfield Council told the Advertiser: "This was a tragic case involving a young man and our thoughts are very much with his family at this distressing time."

"The report states that the circumstances in which this horrendous crime was committed couldn't have been foreseen and because the perpetrator was not prevented from being on the streets at the time there was little, if any action Enfield Council could have undertaken to have prevented this sad and tragic outcome."

Boys robbed in park by knife gang

A GANG of youths threatened teenage boys with a knife before robbing them in Enfield Town Park last week.

A police helicopter and plain clothes officers searched the area after the incident during which the three friends on half term were threatened by a group of about 11 youths aged about 16 and 17.

Mobile phones, cash and a designer satchel were taken in the incident near the Essex Road entrance of the park at about 3.30pm on Thursday.

The victims were not injured. A relative of one of the boys said: "They were pushed around a bit and were shaken."

She added that the gang had separated the boys and had even handed one phone back as they did not like it.

Members of the public called the police after they spotted what was happening and challenged the gang.

Police tweeted: "Two males have been arrested after a foot chase. Suspects arrested, people protected."

Rethink on unlocked parks receives friendly welcome

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD Council's decision is reconsidering its plans to leave more than 20 parks unlocked at night in a bid to save £26,000.

The Consortium of Friends of Enfield Parks has welcomed the rethink, which could see just eight of the borough's parks unlocked overnight, trimming up to £9,450 from overtime costs.

The recommendation was expected to be approved by the council's overview and scrutiny committee at a meeting last night, with the list of which eight parks will be left unlocked also set to be finalised.

It has been hailed as a U-turn after a decision in October last year to leave all the parks unlocked was called in.

New cabinet member for the environment Daniel Anderson announced the review after visiting parks.

Peter Gibbs, who chairs the Consortium of Friends of Enfield Parks, said the group welcomed Mr Anderson's approach.

"Parks are a major asset," he said. "The local community regard parks as part of their lifestyle."

Mr Gibbs added that locking parks was a deterrent to crime and he was pleased the council had listened to users, with 4,000 signatures collected for a petition by the Friends of Bury Lodge Park and Grovelands Park alone.

Denise Vallance, chairwoman of the Friends of Bury Lodge Park, in Bury Street West, Edmonton,

JOHN MACDONALD-FULTON

Petitioners: The Consortium of Friends of Enfield Parks has welcomed Enfield Council's decision to reconsider plans to leave park gates unlocked during the night said: "We really should not have had to go round doing petitions. Common sense has prevailed."

When the decision was called in, the council was criticised for failing to consult widely enough and meetings were held with friends' groups between November and March.

Shadow cabinet member for the environment Joanne Laban said the police had not been consulted and was concerned that there could be increased vandalism and antisocial behaviour.

She told the Advertiser this week: "I welcome the new cabinet member's boldness in making a U-turn on the proposals to do a blanket-wide cease of locking parks at night. I know up until a few weeks ago there were no plans to reverse the decision so this is an improvement.

"However, eight parks will now no longer be locked and that is concerning especially as some have high ASB (antisocial behaviour) levels indicated in the official documents last year. The rationale for reducing the number of parks being locked is to create a saving of £9,000, but if a swing is set fire to it will cost more to replace it than to lock the parks at night."

Forty Hall's big day out

FUN lovers will be spoilt for choice when Forty Hall Estate celebrates all it has to offer with its spectacular Big Sunday event this weekend.

The jam-packed extravaganza from noon to 7pm features a host of activities showcasing all the restored Jacobean mansion and the historic parkland surrounding it has to offer.

Among the attractions will be live music at Forty Hall Farm, a craft market in the hall of the mansion and sports in the landscaped grounds.

The 16th-century estate, in Forty Hill, Enfield, covers 260 acres and was restored to its former glory with funding from Enfield Council and the Heritage Lottery Fund in 2012.

The Big Sunday event is being organised by Forty Hall Farm and Friends of Forty Hall and coincides with The Big Lunch, a community get-together, so bring a picnic to enjoy in the grounds, along with Open Farm Sunday, a national initiative to open up farms across the UK.

"Forty Hall is a great asset for the council and this is just one example of the fabulous types of event that are held there," said Yasemin Brett, the council's cabinet member for organisations and culture.

A park-and-ride scheme will be in operation with two minibuses running between 11.45am and 6pm from the junction of Bulls Moor Lane and Bulls Cross, Enfield, with car parking available at Bulls Cross Field.

Suspended sentence for road rage driver with baseball bat

A MAN who threatened a driver with a baseball bat in a fit of road rage has avoided a prison sentence after pleading guilty to two offences earlier this month.

Christopher Craig, 24, of Hyde Park Avenue, Winchmore Hill, admitted one count of criminal damage and one of affray at Highbury Magistrates' Court on May 8.

He was sentenced at the same court last week to 12 weeks in prison, suspended for 12 months. He will also have to carry out 100 hours of community service as well as attend an anger management course.

A 23-year-old driver and his passenger saw Craig walking down the middle of Silver Street, in Edmonton, on July 11 last year and sounded his horn, enraging Craig.

He shouted at the driver before jumping into his own car and followed him to the junction of Silver Street with the A406 North Circular Road.

Both cars stopped at a red traffic light and Craig leapt out of his own car and stormed towards his victim ranting at him to get out of the car and threatening to kill him.

His victim stayed in his car and locked the doors. However, Craig continued his assault and began kicking the doors of the car and broke the wing mirror.

He then returned to his own car and brandished a baseball bat he had taken from his boot.

The victim managed to drive off unharmed.

Police officers investigating the attack were able to trace Craig using information from the DVLA and he was arrested on July 30, 2014.

PC Daniel Mount, lead investigating officer for Enfield police, said: "The victim was travelling home from work and, in an unprovoked attack, had his vehicle violently damaged after being chased by Craig in another vehicle.

"Craig threatened the victim with a baseball bat, stating that he was going to kill him. I can only imagine how frightened the victim must have been at the time."

Track stars jump at athletics opportunity

By Russ Lawrence
russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

STAR-STRUCK youngsters were in exalted company as they shared the running track with top British athletes while having fun in special half-term sports camps at Lee Valley Athletics Centre, in Picketts Lock, Edmonton, last week.

They were taking part in Star Track, a series of taster sessions which introduced them to a range of disciplines, from hurdles and high jump, to sprinting, javelin and discus.

And as the youngsters were receiving expert coaching, training just yards away was current women's world 400metres champion and 2008 Olympic gold medallist Christine Ohuruogu, together with Ponders End-born British sprinter Chijindu Ujah.

Mick Bond, centre manager, said: "More than 40 youngsters aged from six to 12 took part in the sessions, which are aimed at developing an interest in sport by making it fun and exciting."

To round off an eventful day, the budding athletes could not resist striking the trademark lightning bolt pose of six-times Olympic gold medal winner and the world's fastest man Usain Bolt.

Monty: 'End freeze on public health spending'

By Julia Gregory

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

POLITICIANS are being urged to help end the freeze on funding for Enfield Public Health.

Enfield's Over 50s Forum has asked the borough's three MPs to lend their weight to calls for an increase to the £14.2million budget the public health body was granted in 2014.

It wants Enfield Southgate Conservative MP David Burrows, Enfield North Labour MP Joan Ryan, who returned to parliament after last month's election, and new Edmonton MP Labour's Kate Osamor to press for more money to help improve people's health in the borough.

Enfield Public Health has responsibility for promoting healthy lifestyles and tackling health problems including obesity, smoking, drug abuse and excess alcohol use.

Responsibility for promoting public health was devolved to local authorities as part of the reorganisation of the NHS in April 2013.

Monty Meth, the forum's president, said: "The forum cannot understand this anomaly in funding when we all need the services provided by public health to be available all the time, while NHS primary care is only required some of the time."

He compared the freeze in funds with the £24.1m increase to the 2015/16 budget of Enfield CCG, which commissions the majority of GP services.

The CCG has an overall budget of £360.7m, he said.

Mr Meth said: "The forum is calling on the MPs for help because Public Health England, which supervises all local public health bodies, says it has no control over local funding."

He added that Enfield's grant works out at £43 per person, compared with £68 for people in Haringey and £133 for Kensington and Chelsea residents.

He said: "The critical importance of securing more funding for public health can be judged by the 20 per cent of deaths of Enfield residents still being related to smoking and that the cost to the borough of obesity and overweight people across all ages is estimated to be £84m a year."

Boris on the right track to signal start of new-look rail service

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

On the move: Mayor of London Boris Johnson at Enfield Town railway station on Monday morning

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE Mayor of London visited Enfield Town railway station on Monday to mark the latest move to bring transport in the capital under City Hall's control.

As of Monday trains running from Liverpool Street to Enfield Town and Cheshunt are part of London Overground – the service which runs around the outskirts of the capital and is featured in orange on the Tube map.

Former operators Abellio lost the franchise to Transport for London, which has pledged to increase staffing levels at all the stations to bring them in line with the others on the London Overground service.

According to TfL bosses, services will improve dramatically because, unlike national rail operators, which prioritise longer distance trains to collect higher fares and are therefore more likely to cancel suburban stopping trains if problems emerge, London Overground Rail Operations Ltd is rewarded if it provides punctuality and cleaner services.

Alongside the superficial changes to the signage at stations, which are now branded in distinctive orange, fares will be charged in line with TfL rates rather than national rail fares.

A peak ticket from Cheshunt to a station in Zone 1 now costs £6.90 and an off-peak fare on the same route will now be £4 rather than £6.20.

However, while the 30-year-old trains will be given a makeover with new paint and seats, passengers will have to wait until 2018 for new rolling stock to be introduced.

TfL is a local government organisation, but some have argued that its success in running transport in the capital should be a model for nationalisation of the rail network.

Asked if he believed that the TfL model could work throughout the country, Mr Johnson, who was also elected as Conservative MP for Uxbridge and South Ruislip in last month's general election, said: "I'm in favour of local democratic control of transport wherever that's possible."

"I think that TfL has done an outstanding job with the Overground. We've seen huge increases in ridership and big increases in public satisfaction levels on the Overground since we started the service."

The mayor has been open about his desire to bring all transport in London – including commuter services which connect the outskirts of the capital to the city – under his control.

And last week Sir Peter Hendy, the commissioner for Transport for London, apologised after calling train operating companies, including South-eastern, which cater for commuters "like the wild west...awful", saying that passengers detest their suburban rail services.

Asked if he would like to see more suburban services taken over by TfL, the mayor added: "What we hope very much is that when we are thought to have done a good job with this franchise (the Abellio routes to Enfield, Cheshunt and Shenfield), we are hopeful that in 2018 when the Southeastern franchise comes up that the logic will be to extend TfL to that service as well."

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. "Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole."

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. "The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated."

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Chickenshed Theatre

SINCE Chickenshed started 41 years ago, our aim has been to give people opportunities, especially if they don't feel that these will naturally come their way.

This has been realised with our (entirely free) Young Creators' scheme. The concept is that young people aged 14 to 25 will gain practical experience in the world of theatre. We are known for our work with performers, but this scheme also is intended for those who want to learn about working behind the scenes in a professional theatre.

We have ten programme areas covering options for future theatre makers, such as directing, choreography, songwriting, scriptwriting and devising, and for those with an interest in gaining experience backstage like lighting, wardrobe and music technology.

During the programme young people work in small groups led by, or shadowing, Chickenshed's experienced staff, who mentor and give guidance on their career development. The benefit of being in a busy working theatre means that our Young Creators gain truly "hands-on" experience as they train alongside their peers and work directly on live performances, as well as having access to all our specialist equipment and resource.

We pride ourselves on being totally inclusive – consequently we welcome people regardless of their background, ability or financial situation. We would like young people to apply now to join the next intake, which starts in September.

If you are interested or would like more information about our scheme, contact Belinda McGuirk on 020 8216 2755, at belindamc@chickenshed.org.uk or www.chickenshed.org.uk/yc

It's time for Brits to take a stand on TTIP

RECENTLY, almost unreported in the British media as usual, have been two disturbing pieces of news about the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership.

Firstly, the EU decided to withdraw banning 31 pesticides containing endocrine disrupting chemicals in favour of easing the TTIP negotiations.

A while ago I wrote to my MP, Theresa Villiers, voicing my concerns about TTIP, shared by millions of other Europeans.

I received a briefing entitled TTIP – Separating Myth from Fact, in which it was stated that "TTIP will not decrease environmental standards".

But what on Earth is this decision if not a lowering of EU standards on pesticide safety?

Secondly, the European Committee on International Trade recently voted in favour of including the Investor State Dispute Settlement (ISDS) mechanism in TTIP in spite of opposition from France, Germany and Italy.

These secret tribunals enable international corporations to sue democratically elected governments over laws that they deem to limit the profits they envisage making.

The track record of ISDS cases so far is alarming.

For example – Veolia vs Egypt for increasing the minimum wage? What signal does this send out to any other country wanting to introduce a minimum wage?

However, so far more than 1,950,000 have signed a petition calling for a halt to the current secret TTIP negotiations.

Unfortunately, more than 1,110,000 are from just one country – Germany. Is it that Germans are more concerned about the erosion of democracy?

MEPs are voting again on June 10, so why not tell them what you think?

We must have a plan to tackle air pollution

THE government has been told by the UK's Supreme Court that it needs a new and more urgent plan to reduce the amount of bad air we breathe.

Londoners are suffering the health impacts of streets clogged with polluting vehicles and the failure of those in power at all levels of government to take significant action to reduce traffic and reduce the sources of the pollution.

The Mayor of London has proposed setting up an Ultra Low Emission Zone in central London that will only allow in the cleanest of vehicles.

This is a positive step, but it leaves the bulk of Londoners outside the zone. With the government saying that Londoners will still be breathing illegal polluted air after 2030, we need to stop these half-hearted measures.

The mayor told me last month that "if boroughs want to add themselves on to the Ultra Low Emission Zone, there is no reason in principle why they should not".

I think that we should take him at his word and encourage as many areas of London as possible to opt into this new healthier clean air zone.

Shocked by wasteful NHS

I RECENTLY had a very successful hip replacement operation which was funded by the NHS, to whom I am grateful.

Prior to my hospital admission, I was visited by a physiotherapist, who very kindly arranged to supply me with two raised free-standing toilet seats, a bath board, two metal walking sticks, a perching stool and six devices for increasing the bed height.

My operation was so successful that I did not need any of these devices in respect of which the cost might well have been approaching £1,000, so I approached the hospital to arrange for their return and reallocation.

To my astonishment, I found they were not interested and suggested that these new items should be scrapped.

If any reader has a use for this information, please let me know by calling me on 020 8482 5948. I will happily donate the devices and even deliver them if necessary.

Get rid of this TfL travel perk

If you live in Enfield, a yearly Travelcard could set you back up to £2,188. But if you're a flatmate or lodger of a Transport for London employee, you can be chosen to receive a "nominee pass", which gets you free travel on London's buses, Tube and DLR. About 8,500 free journeys are made every year with these passes across the capital, costing some £22.2million annually. The expensive scheme is projected to cost £111m by 2020.

Bus and Tube drivers and other transport staff provide an essential service and should be entitled to their free travel pass. However, at a time when the public sector is having to make money stretch further, there is no justification for their friends, flatmates and lodgers receiving these benefits just because they happen to live at the same address.

If we scrap this over-generous perk, we would free up enough cash to fund free Travelcards for our firefighters, who, unlike the police, don't get free travel in London, and there would be enough left over to pay for an extra 175 Routemaster buses to help keep Londoners moving. It's about time TfL cracked down on waste, used their common sense and got rid of this gold-plated perk.

Tax it – or risk losing it

I AM deeply concerned that buyers of used cars are being fined or having their cars towed away because they are not aware of new rules on tax discs introduced by the DVLA last October.

While the new rules mean you no longer need to display a paper tax disc on your windscreen, not everyone realises that road tax now expires the moment a car is sold and is not transferable. This means a car buyer needs to tax the vehicle themselves or make sure the dealer taxes it for them.

The DVLA claims it tried to inform the public, but it has been widely reported that 8,000 cars are being clamped per month now compared to 5,000 before the changes. Make sure you tax your car from the moment you own it, or you may find yourself facing a fine or having your car towed away.

Students face up to the big issues

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

STUDENTS at an inclusive theatre school have rounded off their years of study by performing, producing and devising two plays.

Break the Cycle, an examination of the issues around forced marriage and honour killing, and Consumerism Kills?, which deals with the cost of an obsession with constant consumption, were performed by students from the BA degree course in inclusive performance from Chickenshed Theatre Company, in Chase Side, Southgate.

The performances were publicised and produced by the students at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, last week and were created with the specific aim of educating and informing audiences about the issues addressed in the plays.

Speaking to the Advertiser before going on stage on Thursday, Ben Moody and Aria Valzano, both cast members in the production of Consumerism Kills?, explained that the unique aspect of the theatre programme meant that they had been developing the production since September.

Ben, a member of the ensemble cast who took on a range of roles for the production, said: "Everyone wrote what issue they would like to do, we talked about it and then we began eliminating the issues one by one until we concentrated on the final issue."

Aria added that dealing with consumerism struck the group as a particularly relevant idea.

She said: "We could relate this idea to ourselves because really we are all consumerist, especially people our age and particularly here in the west."

Ben and Aria's group decided that they would use the skills they had developed in their years of studying and performing at Chickenshed to write a play based on the Rana Plaza factory collapse in Bangladesh in 2013.

Course colleagues Amy-Rose Green and Emine Pasa, on the other hand, developed a production based on the issue of forced marriage.

Explaining the process of developing a production based on such an emotive issue, Amy-Rose said: "A lot of our evidence came from interviews. We also gave out a questionnaire back in September that families and friends filled out."

"We wanted to get as much information from people as possible and we found that this was a great resource to get facts and information about the issue."

Emine added that she knew people who had experienced forced marriage as well as someone whose life had been affected by the issue of honour killing, so it was important to explore the issue and educate audiences about the impact these issues can have on all areas of life.

Faced with the prospect of life after Chickenshed, both Emine and Amy-Rose are using their experience with the inclusive theatre company to make the move into teaching.

Ben will be delivering drama workshops to young people and children. Aria is hoping to keep performing in the arts and will be staying in contact with Chickenshed.

Teenager is given custodial sentence for street robbery

A THIRD member of a teenage gang who robbed a group of young people in Winchmore Hill nearly two years ago was sentenced last week.

The 16-year-old boy, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was found guilty at Wood Green Crown Court in April of robbing a group of four young people, all aged between 16 and 17, in October 2013.

He was sentenced at Wood Green Crown Court on Friday to 40 months' detention in a young offenders' institution.

During the three-day trial in April, the court heard that police were called just after 10.30pm on October 25, 2013, to reports of a robbery in Tresilian Avenue.

The victims were approached by about ten teenage boys, all wearing hooded tops. The robbers demanded mobile phones from the teenagers.

One of the victims, a 17-year-old boy, was hit over the head several times with a glass bottle and was stabbed six times in the back.

Another 17-year-old was also assaulted and received minor injuries to his head and body. However, he did not need hospital treatment.

All four boys had their mobile phones stolen as well as their Oyster cards.

A white X-Box controller was also taken.

The 16-year-old robber was arrested on June 3, 2014, and officers searched his home address.

They discovered an Oyster card which did not belong to him. Officers also looked through his phone and found evidence which linked him to the attacks.

He was charged with four counts of robbery in October last year.

Investigating officer Detective Constable Andy Parr, from Edmonton CID, said:

"This is the third member of the group to be convicted and I can only hope this case highlights how hard we will work to bring offenders to justice. I would like to thank all four victims for their patience and work in helping to send this teenager to court after such a long period of time."

□ A 17-year-old boy was given a total of four years' detention in a young offenders' institution for his involvement in the robberies at Wood Green Crown Court on December 6, 2013.

Two of the six counts of robbery he was sentenced for occurred in a separate incident on October 24, 2013.

Sentencing delay for firm over teenager's death fall

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE sentencing of a company which admitted a breach of health and safety regulations on a building site an Enfield teenager fell to his death has been adjourned for three months.

Alfie Perrin, 16, was working as an apprentice for loft conversion company Rooftop Rooms, based in Baker Street, Enfield, when he fell from scaffolding at a building site in Camden Road, in Wanstead, east London, on November 14, 2012.

The company had initially stood trial alongside Andrew Voy, who had been the teenager's supervisor when he fell through a gap in the scaffold.

Mr Voy had been accused of manslaughter, but was acquitted by a jury on March 31.

The company pleaded guilty to one count of failing to discharge a duty to employees on the second day of the trial at Snaresbrook Crown Court.

The sentencing of the company was due to take place at the same court last Wednesday.

However, despite having admitted the breach of health and safety regulations, Rooftop Rooms maintains this was not responsible for Alfie's death.

Therefore, the sentencing was adjourned so that a Newton Hearing can take place.

This hearing, which will see Judge Martyn Zeidman QC listen to evidence from witnesses in order to adjudicate whether the company is in fact culpable in the death of the teenager, is expected to last three days and is scheduled to take place at Snaresbrook on September 2.

Defence counsel Andrew Magee told the judge that technicalities meant the guilty plea "was not something that could have been dealt with in the course of the trial".

Awaiting sentence: Rooftop Rooms, in Baker Street, Enfield, has admitted breaching health and safety regulations after apprentice Alfie Perrin, top, died after falling from scaffolding at a building site where he was working for the company

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

Margaret's so grateful for her stairlifts from heaven!

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A GREAT-grandmother who had been forced to confine herself to the ground floor of her home is celebrating after her housing association agreed to install stairlifts in her townhouse – after four years of lobbying.Margaret Mitchell, 72, of Durants Road, Ponders End, suffers from crippling osteoporosis and after two knee operations was struggling with the three flights of stairs in her four-storey home.Four years ago she was able to negotiate the stairs by walking sideways or even sometimes backwards down the flights.However, as the pain in her legs grew worse, she was forced to spend most of her days in the kitchen on the lower level of the house.“Years ago we moved the kitchen to the ground floor and so I would spend most of my time down in the kitchen,” she told the Advertiser.“I would do what I had to do upstairs during the day and then I would go downstairs and spend the rest of the day down there.”When she and Paul, her husband of 33 years, approached Sanctuary Housing for help, they were told there was no way that stairlifts could be installed so that the great-grandmother-of-two and grandmother-of-seven would be able to get around her own home.“They could offer nothing to me,” said Mrs Mitchell. “Originally, we wanted to move, but the housing association had nothing for us at all – they could offer us nothing.”“We need to be near amenities, but they had absolutely nothing.”Faced with spending her time living as a prisoner in her own home confined to just one room, she approached Age UK Enfield, who immediately took up her case.What followed was four years of steady lobbying of the housing association.“Age UK were absolutely brilliant and Andy Love [Mrs Mitchell's then MP for Edmonton],”

CHRIS WOOD

Heaven-sent: Margaret Mitchell at her home in Ponders End

she said. “They were my mouthpiece. They were my letter writers, they were everything.”“And even though Mr Love stepped down from parliament he made sure he saw this through.”The charity sought help from Mr Love and together they lobbied the housing association, explaining that Mrs Mitchell could not be expected to live in just one corner of her home.Finally, three weeks ago, the Mitchells saw the four years of hard work pay off when the stairlifts were finally installed.

“I am more than grateful for it,” added Mrs

Mitchell. “It has made my life so much easier.
For the first time in years I can use the whole of my house and I am not confined to the ground floor anymore.”Lindsey Coulson, patron of Age UK Enfield, said: “I am always so amazed by the wide range of complex individual issues that this service has

Fifth man jailed for double kidnapping

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A FIFTH man has been jailed for his part in the kidnap and torture of two men, including one from Enfield.

Christopher White, 29, was sentenced to 20 years in jail at the Old Bailey on Wednesday for the part he played in the kidnap and assault of the men two years ago.

White, of Croydon, south London, was found guilty at the Old Bailey on May 14, alongside four others, of kidnapping and torturing the two in a bid to secure a ransom from their families in May 2013.

The four others – Courtney Bishop, Nigel Bishop, Keith Walker and Allan Smith – were jailed on May 15.

In the course of the trial at the Old Bailey the court heard that on May 3, 2013, the first victim, a 27-year-old, was dragged from the street outside his home in Upper Holloway, north London, shoved into the back of a car, hooded and driven off.

Although the victim could not see, he later told police he had the impression that he was taken to a flat in a tower block as he remembered the car park and the lift that he was taken up in. In the course of the next 12 hours, he was tied up, gagged and hooded, and beaten so badly he was left with a broken eye socket. He was burned with an iron and had boiling water poured over his body.

Jailed: Christopher White

His kidnappers then contacted his friends and family demanding a ransom to secure his release. After his 12-hour ordeal, he was released and dumped in Chalk Farm.

He later discovered that his kidnappers had taken his keys and burgled his home.

Two days later, on May 5 2013 the kidnappers struck again, this time abducting a 24-year-old man from inside his own home in Enfield.

Due to the severity of the trauma he was subjected to, the man remembered little of his ordeal apart from that, similarly to the first victim, his head was mostly covered and a sock was shoved in his mouth.

He was beaten with an iron bar and burned and tortured to such an extent that he was left suffering kidney failure.

His captors contacted his family and demanded £30,000 in cash – threatening to cut off the young man's fingers if they did not pay.

He eventually came back to consciousness in the back seat of his own car, not far from Brent Cross.

He spent the next four days recovering in intensive care.

The first victim was able to provide a detailed description of the flat where he had been held in which there was a distinctive round window with views of Wembley Stadium.

Detectives used this information to identify a property in Hampstead. The five men, all of whom were unemployed, were arrested between October 1 and 2, 2014.

Firefighters battle loft blaze

A WOMAN and child fled from a fire which broke out in the loft room of an end of terrace home in Lower Edmonton after a neighbour spotted smoke coming out of the roof.

The roof and loft room of the house in Danube Close were badly damaged in the blaze on Sunday afternoon.

A team of 21 firefighters with four fire engines from Edmonton, Enfield, Chingford and Tottenham tackled the fire. They were called out just before 7pm and brought it under control by 8.55pm.

Station manager Daniel Alie said: "The fire started in the loft room and the alarm was raised by a neighbour who saw smoke coming out of the roof. Fire crews had to work very quickly to confine the fire to the loft and roof area of the house and stop it spreading to neighbouring properties."

The cause of the blaze is thought to be an electrical fault and is being investigated.

A load of rubbish: Councillor Joanne Laban, pictured in Alma Road, Ponders End, after a previous instance of fly-tipping

Parties clash over problem of fly-tipping

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

COUNCIL chiefs have rubbished accusations that they are standing by as fly-tipped garbage piles up on the borough's streets.

Accusations that Labour councillors are in denial about a rise in fly-tipping in the east of the borough have been rebuffed as political point-scoring by Daniel Anderson, the new cabinet chief for environment.

Tory councillors last week launched a social media drive calling on the council to #cleanupenfield, calling on the council to "own" the issue.

In a statement issued to the Advertiser, Joanne Laban, the Conservatives' spokeswoman for the environment, said fly-tipping problems could be solved by letting residents report it on social media rather than via the council website.

She said: "The response we have had from the Labour council is not to admit there is a problem, but simply say people should report it via the council website instead of social media."

"While that works for some people, how much easier would it be if residents could take a picture on their phone when they are out and about and then immediately use Twitter, Facebook or What's App to submit it?"

"We urge the public to continue to tweet the images of fly-tips to highlight the growing issue, embarrass those who dump rubbish in our borough and put pressure on the Labour council to own the issue."

Mr Anderson responded: "Nationally, Enfield comes second when it comes to the reporting of fly-tips. We spend the fifth highest amount nationally on clearing fly-tips, the vast majority of which are cleared before they are even reported, and we are the second highest for the amount of fines administered."

"My biggest concern is that by over-egging the soufflé, councillor Laban is undermining Enfield's reputation as a borough to do business and she should stop playing party games."

Anyone wishing to report fly-tipping should log on to the council website www.enfield.gov.uk and fill out a reporting form.

Meet the heavy squad

On display: Judges take a look at the entrants

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

MAJESTIC heavy horses transported folk back to a time before “horsepower” was associated with what’s under a car’s bonnet instead of at the end of the reins of a cart, or plough.

The giants of the equine world were the star attraction at Capel Manor Gardens, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, on Sunday when Hertfordshire Heavy Horses Association held its annual show.

More than 20 of the magnificent horses, along with an assortment of coaches and carriages, plus glittering polished brass harnesses and agricultural implements of all shapes and sizes, helped recreate our rural heritage.

Among the breeds parading were Clydesdales, Shires and two French breeds – Percherons and Comtois. Individual breeds were judged, together with categories for horses in harnesses and horses pulling carts, traps and agricultural equipment.

There was also an obstacle course competition, a dog agility display and demonstrations by a farrier.

“Despite some rain it couldn’t dampen the spirits of the crowds, it was a brilliant day,” said Hertfordshire Heavy Horses Association chairman John Sparks.

Trial of strength: This large and powerful horse scarcely seems to notice the sled he’s pulling

Might as well jump: Dogs, above and below, take part in a canine agility course

Boyhood passion grows into something bigger

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A CHILDHOOD passion for nature and love of the "magic" of growing attracted Myddelton House's new head gardener to the career.

Filling the Wellington boots of his predecessor Andrew Turvey, James Hall has assumed the horticultural helm at the grounds originally transformed by Edward Augustus Bowles, one of Britain's most famous self-taught gardeners, artists and botanists.

James, 34, grew up in Yorkshire and spending his early years in the countryside there inspired in him a lifelong love for flora and fauna.

"I would get home from school and then be out all evening, making tree houses and playing in ponds, only appearing at the front door for food before heading out again," he told the Advertiser. "Biology was my favourite subject at school."

A job studying moths under microscopes in a laboratory proved a step too far away from James' s outdoors leanings and it wasn't until he began to grow "bits and pieces of vegetables" on a patch of waste ground near his shared house that the possibility of a career in horticulture struck.

He said: "I brought some flower seeds and a few vegetable seeds and just started growing things without really knowing what I was doing. When things began to sprout, it was like magic."

Research trips to Sweden, Norway, Scotland and Ireland followed before

James landed a Royal Horticultural traineeship at Harlow Carr Gardens, in Harrogate, North Yorkshire.

This stint sealed the deal. "It was one of the best things I'd ever done in my life," he said. "It was so exciting and I learned so much."

Then it was time for a journey down south, taking up a three-year apprenticeship at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, before going on to tend a private garden in Highgate, in north London.

When the position at Myddelton House, in Bulls Cross, Enfield, cropped up this year, James jumped at the chance.

From the unusual plants nestling in the "lunatic asylum" and the restored Kitchen Garden, to the cheery Alpine Meadow and the snowdrop collection which draws crowds each year, Myddelton House packs a punch in terms of horticultural diversity.

"I couldn't help but feel captivated when I came here," he said, gesturing around the gardens, a riotous tapestry of vegetables and flowers as they stand poised to head into summer.

"There's a little bit of everything here, so many different micro-climates – the diversity of plants is incredible."

So what are his plans?

"I would like to work at preserving what we have and made that as good as possible. I'm looking forward to working with the EA Bowles of Myddelton House Society and local horticultural groups to push the gardens forwards, also with the brilliant volunteers we have here – there are 30 of them. But first of all, I want to get to know the gardens inside out."

Green fingers: James Hall has taken over as Myddelton House's new head gardener

Carers get a helping hand

UNSUNG heroes who look after a disabled or elderly relative or friend are being offered assistance as part of Carers Week, which runs from June 8 to 15.

Enfield Council is working with Enfield Carers Centre to raise awareness of the support that is available to the estimated 30,000 carers in the borough.

There will also be a number of events, including a family fun day on Saturday, June 13, in front of Enfield Town library.

"Caring for a person who needs help with everyday tasks can be demanding," said Alev Cazimoglu, the council's cabinet member for health and social care.

"This is a week to reach out to them and offer the support they may need," she added.

Stacey's set to Light up the Millfield

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

CLINT Eastwood invited her to sing at his 70th birthday party and she boasts celebrity fans including former talk show host Michael Parkinson and Aerosmith's Steve Tyler.

Acclaimed award-winning American jazz singer Stacey Kent (pictured) returns to Edmonton's Millfield Theatre tomorrow (Thursday) to perform live in concert, six years since last appearing at the venue.

The New Jersey-born chanteuse will perform tracks from her latest album, Changing Lights, featuring bossa nova classics displaying her love of Brazilian music, alongside standards and originals penned by her husband, saxophonist, arranger and composer Jim Tomlinson, and acclaimed novelist-turned-lyricist, Kazuo Ishiguro.

The 47-year-old has earned a global reputation since arriving in London over two decades ago to study at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama, where, incidentally, she met her husband.

She has performed at major festivals and venues all over the world and her records have sold more than 1.5 million copies worldwide, including the Grammy-nominated, platinum-selling Breakfast on a Morning Train, while her follow-up albums

Raconte-Moi and Dreamer in Concert have been released in nearly 40 countries.

Fluent in French, as well as Portuguese, Italian and German, she has been able to transcend national boundaries and genres as demonstrated in 2010 when she was made a knight in the French Order of Arts and Letters for her album Raconte-Moi, which she recorded entirely in French.

As for her return to the Millfield, in Silver Street, Stacey promises an evening of "lilting jazz".

"It's going to be an intimate night of romance, joy and a breeze from Brazil," she says.

Bonding exercise

SPY (15, 120 mins)

OSCAR-nominated actress Melissa McCarthy reunites with Bridesmaids writer-director Paul Feig for an action-packed mission, which would leave James Bond decidedly shaken and stirred by its unorthodox approach to 21st-century espionage.

Punctuated by thrilling chases and a frenetic knife fight in a restaurant kitchen, Spy is a terrifically entertaining caper, jam-packed with belly laughs and foul-mouthed outbursts.

The high jinks are underpinned by another winning performance from McCarthy as a deskbound analyst at the CIA, who is championed for her homemade cakes rather than her sharp intellect.

Brains arm-wrestle brawn in Feig's politically incorrect and uproarious script, including an amusing cameo from rapper 50 Cent as himself and a juicy supporting role for Miranda Hart.

Jason Statham lampoons his tough guy screen image as a CIA operative, who was clearly at the shallow end of the gene pool when they were doling out intelligence.

One wordy scene – perhaps the most dialogue Statham has ever delivered in a single take – is a particular highlight.

Suave secret agent Bradley Fine (Jude Law) completes some of the agency's most dangerous missions thanks to the quick-thinking and hi-tech gadgetry of analyst Susan Cooper (McCarthy).

He takes all of the acclaim while Susan remains firmly in the background haunted by her controlling mother's mangled mantra: "Well-behaved women do make history."

When Bradley and the other agents, including British bruiser Rick Ford (Statham), are compromised, Susan puts herself forward for active duty to infiltrate the inner circle of arms dealer Rayna Boyanov (Rose Byrne).

CIA deputy director Elaine Crocker (Allison Janney) places her trust in Susan to complete the perilous mission without any field experience.

Guided by her dithering colleague Nancy Artlingstall (Hart), Susan adopts a series of disguises to get close to Rayna without arousing suspicion.

Making a point: CIA analyst Melissa McCarthy and secret agent Jude Law star in Spy

"I look like someone's homophobic aunt," remarks Susan about one of her fake personas.

As Rayna prepares to sell a stolen device to Sergio De Luca (Bobby Cannavale), Susan throws caution to the wind to avert global disaster.

Opening with an extended action sequence and Saul

Bass-inspired opening titles replete with a Bond-esque thunderous ballad, Spy is a rip-roaring treat.

McCarthy throws herself into her role with gusto, mixing steeliness with lovability as she battles armed henchmen, speeds after a target on a scooter and tries to stop a bad guy from escaping in his helicopter.

Hart essentially plays herself, but she's a snug fit amid a strong Anglo-American cast, who deliver Feig's zinging one-liners with tongues wedged firmly in cheek.

The spirit of 007 pervades every frame, but with old-school chauvinism turned on its head to affirm a message of girl power and independence.

Market update – steady as she goes!

The General Election has seen the country elect a Conservative Government with a small overall majority and, to keep the slow road to economic recovery and growth on track. The outcome is a particularly positive one for the property market in both sales and lettings and, in my opinion, whether you are a seller or buyer, landlord or tenant.

The private rental sector will benefit as proposals from Labour and left wing parties to introduce rent controls, reduce or remove tenant fees and tax relief for landlord expenditure were clearly a serious threat to an established system and will not now take place. These proposed changes would almost certainly have seen the sector reduce in size as some landlords decided to invest elsewhere. This would see demand greatly outstrip supply with inevitable increases in rents which potentially would have hurt the very tenants they were misguidedly trying to help.

I now anticipate a renewed appetite for buy to let and rental investment and, with recent changes in pensions, there may be more people looking to use property as part of their pension provision as it will provide an income, potential capital growth and the property is retained as a future legacy. Conservative inheritance tax changes will also make it less onerous on those who inherit property. There will also now be no introduction of a punitive annual "Mansion tax" on properties over £2 million. Of course we need more house building across owner occupier, private and social rental sectors. Again, a strengthening economy will give the confidence and create the environment for this investment. Seeing an increase in the property supply side will help mitigate increases in price and improve affordability.

The Conservatives also propose to increase the scope of "Right to Buy" to include those in Housing Association accommodation. This flagship "Thatcherite" policy from the 1980's was lauded by many but has seen the number of properties available in the social sector reduce. This time there is the promise that funds raised by sales will be used to build more social and affordable housing. Share prices and the pound are now unlikely to see the falls associated with an uncertain market and interest rates will likely stay low. There are some exceptional fixed rate mortgage deals available in the market today. These factors will help bolster the economic recovery. Companies will be more likely to invest and this should create more jobs and generate more income for the Treasury through increased tax revenues. It will also see a reducing benefits budget.

All in all, I believe that the election outcome will help create confidence and is the best result for the country and for the property market. Naturally the last few weeks have seen the property market stutter a little as people have sat on their hands and awaited the outcome of the election. My prognosis for the second half of 2015 is one of improving activity levels and secure house prices.

Now is therefore a great time to put those moving plans into action!

BOSS HAILS TOUR

A positive experience: Mauricio Pochettino was pleased with Spurs' post-season tour

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

HEAD coach Mauricio Pochettino believes that Tottenham Hotspur can take a lot of positives out of their end of season tour to Malaysia and Australia.

After securing a fifth-placed finish in the Premier League, Spurs flew out to Kuala Lumpur at the start of last week for a game against a Malaysian XI and they followed that up by heading to Australia for a match against Sydney FC.

And Pochettino believes that the trip was of a genuine benefit to the club.

"The fans have been incredible," he said. "I give congratulations to the club, the organisation was fantastic and we've enjoyed this tour a lot. It's so far from England but the fans were there to support us. They are amazing.

"There were lots of positives. To see us play in front of over 70,000 in Sydney was amazing and a great experience for the younger players.

"We've had no injuries, we finished at a good level and I'm very happy. Now it's time for holidays and a rest, and we will start pre-season in the most positive way."

As was so often the case last season, Harry Kane was Tottenham's star performer on the tour – scoring both goals in a 2-1 victory over the Malaysian XI before grabbing the only goal of the game to see off Sydney FC.

"The game in Malaysia was difficult," Pochettino added. "The conditions were tough, it's not easy to play in that weather – very hot and humid. The players were also a little tired after the travelling but I think we're happy.

"The young players did well and it was a great experience for us. It's been a good opportunity for the youngsters to play and train with the first team and that's important because they are the future of the club.

"It was an unbelievable atmosphere in Sydney. It was a tough game because Sydney FC are a very good team and after a tough season our players are a little tired, but we tried to show our skills to our fans there. It's just fantastic that our players are so close to our people.

"The game ticked the boxes. It was an opportunity to play the younger players and I'm happy with them, they've improved a lot and this is a great experience for them."

Meanwhile, Spurs have announced their first signing of the summer after securing the services of Kevin Wimmer from FC Koln.

The 22-year-old central defender – who has signed a five-year contract – is an Austrian international and made 72 appearances for Koln in three years with the club.

North Middlesex suffer narrow defeat

NORTH MIDDLESEX'S perfect start to the season in the top flight of the Middlesex County Cricket League came to an end on Saturday when they were beaten by three wickets in a closely fought encounter at table-topping Ealing.

Both sides went into the match with 100 per cent records, and the visitors performed well after being put in to bat – with Atif Zafar (35) and Will Vanderspar (34) laying a good platform.

Evan Flowers top-scored with 67 while Adam Holmes chipped in with 35 before they were dismissed for 259 off the last ball of their 50 overs. Ahsan Faraz (4-41) was the most successful bowler.

Ollie Wilkin smashed 54 off just 29 balls at the start of the hosts' reply, but North Middlesex chipped away well with the ball and the outcome remained in doubt until Leigh Parry (48 not out) and Huw Jones (31) added 58 for the seventh wicket to help Ealing reach 263-7 with 11 balls to spare.

Meanwhile, Hornsey claimed an eight-wicket win at home to Shepherds Bush on Saturday which led to them replacing their visitors at the top of the table.

Sean Solia (4-43) led the way with the ball as Shepherds Bush were dismissed for 171 batting first, with Tom Felton top-scoring with 41.

Solia then continued his fine day by top-scoring with 56 as Hornsey raced to 175-2 in reply, with William Prest (50 not out) also making a significant contribution.

Elsewhere, Highgate recorded their fourth successive win in Division Three as they overcame visiting Kenton by 18 runs.

Craig Gourlay made 68 as Highgate amassed 187 batting first in the face of some excellent bowling from Mohammed Shafiq (7-62), and Hashen Ramanayake's (4-48) helped to dismiss Kenton for 169 in reply.

However, North London slumped to the foot of the table after suffering a 16-run defeat at MTSSC.

Kavithasan Kannathasan proved to be the architect of their downfall, top-scoring with 58 as MTSSC made 180 and then taking 4-35 in North London's reply of 164.

Skolars beaten despite a good display

A MUCH-IMPROVED performance was not quite enough for the London Skolars to end their losing streak as they were beaten 18-10 at North Wales Crusaders in rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship One on Sunday.

Head coach Jermaine Coleman decided to bring himself out of retirement to play in the match, and it proved to be an inspired move as he came close to guiding the Skolars to a shock triumph.

The hosts broke the deadlock after just two minutes when Rob Massam touched down, but the Skolars regrouped well and were the better side for much of the remainder of the first half.

Aaron Small showed strength to force his way over the line and get the visitors back on level terms before they took the lead through a Harvey Burnett try.

Small had a further try disallowed and a penalty from Tommy Johnson on the stroke of half-time helped the Crusaders to reduce their deficit to just two points at the interval.

The hosts improved in the second half but still struggled to make the breakthrough until Sam Peet crossed the line on 56 minutes to put them back in front.

The Skolars continued to battle hard but their fate was sealed when Massam touched down again on 67 minutes to condemn them to a sixth defeat in seven matches.

The London Skolars host Coventry Bears on Saturday.
